Pilisbury Speaks a Piece-The Former Threatens Rebellion and Resist ance...The Latter Wounds the Feel-PARKERSBURG, April 18th, 1866.

Editors Intelligencer:

Sojourning in Parkersburg a few days, I learned that the "conservatives" had a public meeting at the Court House, Anxious to know something in regard to their views and purposes I concluded to "go in."

General Jackson, of Parkersburg, was on the stand delivering a harangue in which he made the following points: 1st. The Constitutional Amendment, if adopted, "robbed a man of citizenship," and the poor fellow, thus denuded, would be "neither fish, flesh or fowl." I thought that many of them would be foul—very foul. I did not know before, nor do I know it since, that there was no difference between a Editors Intelligencer: that there was no difference between a political right and civil rights. The General knew better, and although he insisted upon it that he had a conscience, yet he stands convicted of perverting facts.

2nd. The men who by the adoption of the amendment, will be stripped of the right to vote are men of "capital, respectability, integrity, and high social position," and had "conscience and many of the "prescribed" class do not believe this themselves. To assert that the red handed rebels, bushwhackers and horse thieves are so immaculate is and horse thieves are so immaculate is o put a premium on crime and insult ne moral sense of the community. 3d. If this class were thus degraded,

"We presume the article published in October last, assailing Jefferson Davis, produced the greatest amount of indignation. The editors of the magazine must be actuated by a demoniac hatred of our people, or they would not afford to pay five hundred dollars for an article assailing Jefferson Davis.

"The great state prisoner has no opportunity of replying to his traducers, and ought not this fact to stay the pen of his defamers? When Mr. Davis reads the assaults of these pennyaliners in Harper's Magnaine, how his great soul must chafe! When the hired scribblers of Harper's Magnaine commenced flaunting their dirty hoofs in the face of Jefferson Davis, he must have crayed relief in death."

There is a good deal more fine language in the article. But the amusing part of the business is that the "hired scribbler" and "penny-a-liner" so se-verely handled was none other than General Jordan, chief of staff of General Beauregard, and probably as good a rebel, in his way, as Jeff. Davis or the writer in the Avalanche.

A Novel Wager.-An amusing story is going the rounds of the Paris clubs. It appears that a short time ago a foreigh prince made a heavy bet that he would be arrested by the police without committing any offence whatever, or in any way provoking the authorities. The bet having been taken by a member of the Imperial dub, the prince went to one of the most aristocratic cafes in Paris, dressed in a battered hat, a ragged blouse, and boots all in holes, and sitting down at one of the tables, ordered a cup of coffee. The waiters, however, paid no attention to so suspicious looking a customer, upon which the prince put his hand in his pocket, and showed them a bundle of bank notes. The proprietor then ordered the coffee to be served, sending meanwhile to the nearest police station for a sergent de ville. The prince was duly arrested and taken to the commissary of police, where he stated who he was, and was afterwards taken to the gentleman with whom he made the bet, to prove his identity. A similar story was told at Vienna some time ago of a Hungarian prince Seandar M. de Metternich's son-in-law, who, in order to make his arrest quite sure, took the bank notes out of his boots.

Messrs, McClare, Kraff & Co., Gentlement.
Allow me to aid my testimony to that of others, in regard to your celebrated "Diarrhea Compound." I have been for a long time subject to the disease for which it is recommended. I have the dwarfous remedies; but never found one that so completely eradicate the disease as your medicine. A short time ago I was suffering terribly with Diarrhea 1 procured a bottle of "Kraff." Diarrhea Compound." I experienced immidiate relief from one dose, and offer a third dose felt as well as ever. I regard it as an invaluable medicine, and would not be without it. Yours truly.
